TRINITY HALL
CAMBRIDGE

Trinity Hall Review ^{2018/19}

It has been a wonderful year in the Alumni and Development Office. We have met over 800 of you at events in the UK and in 12 cities overseas; launched our online community Link-Hall; and awarded the Cambridge Social Innovation Prize to four businesses making a positive social impact in the UK. Judging from the alumni news section of the Review (pages 36-37), it has also been a great year for many of you too. It is always a pleasure to hear how our alumni are and what you're getting up to, so thank you for sharing your news with us.

Your support has been keenly felt in the past year. Thanks to your generosity we have been able to provide financial aid to undergraduates; offer studentships to postgraduates; help cover the costs of the wellbeing team; support access initiatives; and refurbish student facilities. Your support is invaluable to our students and is hugely appreciated across the College. Thank you.

The Master's Report

The Revd Canon Dr Jeremy Morris
Master

“Everyone can have a hand in encouraging school students to think about applying to Cambridge, whatever their background, if they’re able and prepared to work hard.”

Research, discovery, scholarship – that’s the foundation of Cambridge’s worldwide reputation

Cambridge has been in the news a lot over the last year and as you’ll be aware, much of the attention has been critical or even hostile. It began with the scandal over Cambridge Analytica but has gone on to embrace admissions and outreach, pay, investment policy, freedom of speech, legacies of slavery, and student disciplinary processes, amongst other things. Some of these media ‘storms’ have scarcely been just – the mere name was enough to taint the University for a time in the case of Cambridge Analytica, despite no concrete relationship between the University and the company. The College is always affected by these things. The outside world often – unsurprisingly – finds it hard to distinguish between the colleges and the University. Criticism of the University spills over into criticism of the College, and vice versa.

Yet in amongst the negative press are many good news stories. I’m always struck by how often a report will begin by saying something like ‘Cambridge scientists have discovered...’ or ‘Scholars at Cambridge have identified...’. Twice a term I have an informal seminar in the Lodge where Fellows talk briefly (for five minutes!) about their research. It’s amazing what extraordinary things they’re up to! Research, discovery, scholarship – the foundation of Cambridge’s worldwide reputation. When it comes to graduation, there are of course many, many individual success stories, with triumph through hard work and in the face, sometimes, of considerable difficulty. There are also many good admissions stories. Cambridge has students here from all social backgrounds and from many different countries. The student body is not the homogenous white, southern, middle-class ‘block’ you might sometimes imagine from the press. That’s not to say that there aren’t significant access challenges remaining or that some social groups aren’t under-represented. But it is to say that the widest possible variety of people do come to Cambridge. Everyone can have a hand in encouraging school students to think about applying to Cambridge, whatever their background, if they’re able and prepared to work hard. That’s something that you as alumni can do, as well as something into which the College pours a great deal of resource, through the work of our admissions office and Schools Liaison Officer; through the work we do with schools and charities such as the Brilliant Club; and through Open Days and school visits.

So if there is sometimes frustration here at the way Cambridge is depicted in the media, nonetheless there’s also quiet satisfaction – not, I hope, complacency – at the fact that the University and the colleges continue to work away at the things that they’re supposed to do: their core activities of education, learning and research. That’s what keeps Cambridge one of the great world universities.

Once we set the noise to one side, this has been an excellent year for the College. We have yet again had an outstanding run of results in the summer exams. I've already mentioned the remarkable work done by our Fellows. Work has begun on the new music building in Avery Court, designed by award-winning architect Niall McLoughlin, with thanks to the generosity of the Avery-Tsui Foundation. The Boat Club triumphed in the Lent Bumps and in the Mays. Other College sport has thrived in cricket, mixed netball and the women's football team yet again, for example. Music has gone from strength to strength, with a third commercial CD about to be recorded by the choir as I write.

Financially, as you'll see from the Bursar's Report, the College has continued to do well in difficult circumstances and amidst all the uncertainty surrounding Brexit. And whilst our fundraising has also thrived, thanks to our dedicated team in the Alumni and Development Office, we are looking forward to exciting plans and increased activity in the years ahead. There's a lot going on, in other words!

I ought to close by thanking all those many staff members and Fellows who've contributed to the year, and to wish you all well.

The Bursar's Report

It has been an unbridled honour and privilege to be part of the College community

When I arrived in September 2004 as Bursar, one thing was immediately clear to me. The system governing Higher Education funding was irredeemably flawed and was not fit for purpose: put simply, it could not last. This led to two further realisations.

Realisation #1: that top universities would have to go 'private' (whatever that means)

At first, the apparent increase in university fees was covered by government forcing the cost onto students. However, the same government withdrew more than was being added by the increased student fees. The growing funding gap was born by the universities, which did one of two things. They either (i) greatly increased student numbers while offering less tuition and facilities (the so-called 'pile it high, sell it cheap' model) or (ii) they did what Oxbridge and any university with a reasonable endowment did and put more of their own money into the mix to subsidise – or as we prefer to term it at Trinity Hall, invest in – their students. In a commercial venture this would be akin to paying for your own product.

The first graph on the next page shows how our 'investment' in students (ie the deficit on our education account) has grown over the last ten years. The Oxbridge model is far more expensive than the model for non-collegiate universities. It is estimated that the tutorial system alone adds 30% to our teaching costs, but that is why we are the best.

Paul ffolkes Davis
Bursar

“The hallmark of our approach has been a willingness to accept levels of risk that might traditionally have been regarded as high.”

Whatever happens in the forthcoming election, it is a virtual certainty that university fees will be cut. You can be sure that the money saved by the individual will not be entirely replaced in university coffers by government support. I would predict that within the next ten years the top universities will have to go private in some form or other – at the very least they will have to be allowed to set their own fees.

Realisation #2: my job was not just to manage the College's non-academic operations, but to make it wealthier and more able to control its own destiny

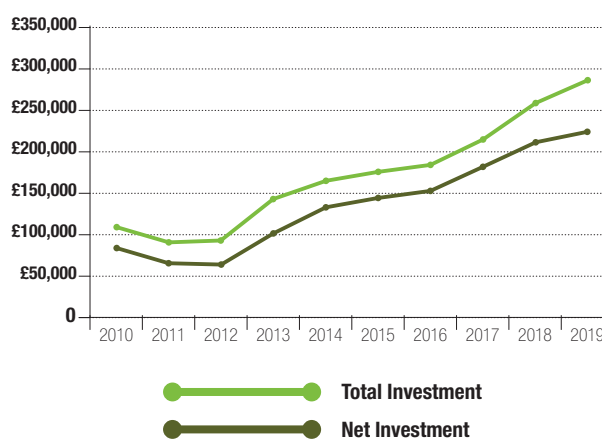

Trinity Hall's endowment was almost completely gone in the early 1970s. Somehow the College managed to get itself caught up in the secondary banking crisis of those years. By the time I arrived in 2004, the College's investments had recovered to £62 million, though £15 million of that was actually cash being held to pay for the prospective Wychfield student housing project. However, even £47 million spoke very favourably of the courageous line taken by the Investment Committee. It committed the vast bulk of our resources to the equity market, in particular to the brilliant care of our now Honorary Fellow Nigel Thomas, at a time when conventional wisdom in managing endowments suggested playing it safe in the bond markets. Amazingly, Trinity Hall has not owned any Gilts since the 1950s and, on the whole, it has been a remarkably effective strategy.

We set about increasing the value of our portfolios in a single-minded manner. The hallmark of our approach has been a willingness to accept levels of risk that might traditionally have been regarded as high. Though my view has always been that living in an extremely low interest-rate environment changes those old rules. The danger facing investors today is too great an exposure to supposedly safe fixed-income securities, at the moment when inflation once again rears its ugly head. This is why we have been willing to repeatedly borrow long-term for investment purposes. I am grateful to my open-minded colleagues who have shared my view that having to repay or refinance loans of 40 and 50 years with fixed coupons of, on average, under 3%, is not lumbering our successors with an unreasonable burden. The time-value of money, even if inflation never returns to previously 'normal' levels, will ensure that these capital amounts will have been considerably reduced in present-day values by the time our placements fall due. In the meantime, we have made a good fist of investing these funds. By way of illustration, the first £25 million we borrowed for 40/50 years from Barclays back in 2007 has a hypothecated worth of just over £63 million at the end of September 2019. The 2019 accounts record a value for the overall endowment of £286 million.

Fee Income and the Education Account Deficit

Growth in Investments

The main tools we have employed in pursuit of value have been diversification and the belief that traditional views of the risk matrix are not necessarily right. In 2009, during the global financial meltdown, our investments were as badly affected as most people's. However, our focus on equity above all, especially small and mid-caps, allowed us to be ahead of where we were before the crash by June 2010 – two years before the main indices. Today, we have around ten equity asset managers and are invested in practically every market around the world, whether mature or emerging. We own Vietnamese equity and Venezuelan debt, mustard from Norwich and micro-chips from Taiwan. We even started a bank!

In recent years we increased the proportion of our wealth held in different forms of property. From residential and commercial buildings in Cambridge to farms in the South East, from brownfield sites in Wisbech to condominiums in Los Angeles, from social housing in Yorkshire to convenience stores in Ohio, everything we buy must have the capacity to produce a steady income and realise a big uplift when it is sold or developed.

You can view the Accounts for the last 10 years on the website: www.trinhall.cam.ac.uk/financial-information.

Above is a graph that tracks the growth of the endowment investments over the last ten years. The top line shows growth including the value of all loans. The second line reflects our actual investment performance in securities of all types and property.

Thank you

Two Masters, two Senior Tutors, two Junior Bursars, a succession of Chairs of the Investment and Property Committees, all my colleagues both within Trinity Hall and the larger University community, especially my fellow Bursars: I am incredibly grateful to have been entrusted with this sacred task and thank you for all your help. It has been an unbridled honour and privilege to be part of the College community. I have never been particularly clubbable, but you could not prove that from the welcome I received and have continued to revel in throughout my time in service to what Sir John Bradfield (the legendary Senior Bursar of Trinity), when I was first introduced to him as the new Bursar next door, termed 'that great college'. At the time I thought that was a classy remark but I now know it was merely recognition of what we are. I am proud the Hall is 'less poor' than it has ever been. I hope I've been more of a help than a hindrance.

Lastly, there are two people who I must mention. Without them life would have been very different and we would certainly not be where we are today on too many fronts to list. Jacqueline Nathan, thank you, and Sheila Hunter, what can I possibly say – thanks can never be enough.

The Senior Tutor's Report

What will remain constant is the College's extension of a warm and inclusive welcome

In medieval times, a year and a day was a traditional period of waiting in which peasants might try to escape feudal duties or lovers be required to prove their professed devotion. For Trinity Hall students studying for a nine-month Master's, a three- or four-year undergraduate degree or a doctorate, a single year represents an equally significant amount of time. Indeed, most former students, once alumni, find that memories of their time at university remain disproportionately vivid for the rest of their lives, reflecting the intensity of student experiences, as well, perhaps, as an uncertainty, for most students, as to what life might bring after graduation.

And these are uncertain times. While much of this past academic year was spent trying to calibrate the likely outcome and practical effects of successive Brexit negotiations and parliamentary votes, the political situation remains unclear and potentially volatile. As Acting Senior Tutor last year, William O'Reilly reminded Trinity Hall Review readers that around one in ten Hall undergraduates, one in five postgraduates and Fellows, and one in seven members of the College's non-academic staff come from an EU country that is not the UK. For a College due to celebrate the 675th anniversary of its founding in 2025, uncertain political times have been weathered before, but what will remain constant is the College's extension of a warm and inclusive welcome to all members, past, present and future, together with an enduring commitment to the highest standards of academic excellence and tutorial provision. And, in 2018-19, the old continued to blend, almost seamlessly, with the new. While Trinity Hall's Old Library is one of the UK's handful of medieval chained libraries, the 'new' Jerwood Library (1998), designed by Hall alumnus Tristan Rees Roberts (1967), was acclaimed as 'Cambridge city centre's favourite building of the last 50 years' in a competition organised by Cambridge City Council and the Greater Cambridge Shared Planning Service to mark the 50th anniversary of the city's central conservation area. And, seemingly never content to let a year pass in quiet tranquillity, the rhythmic drilling of excavation diggers has returned to Central Site as the foundations of new WongAvery Music Gallery were recently laid.

"Across the University, Trinity Hall members work tirelessly to improve the student experiences of their peers."

But buildings are nothing without people inside them. Although tension levels inevitably rose in the Jerwood Library during the Easter Term, last year's undergraduate examination results remained very strong with nearly 30% of students achieving First Class results in their Tripos examinations. In awards based wholly on student votes, Dr James Wood received the 'Best Supervisor 2018-19' prize from students in the Department of Politics and International Studies while, in the CUSU Student-Led Teaching Awards competition, Dr Nick Guyatt and Dr Isabelle McNeill were commended in the Lecturer and Supervisor categories respectively. Across the University, Trinity Hall members work tirelessly to improve the student experiences of their peers, with Alfie Vaughan (2nd year MML), for example, winning the 'Academic Representation' category in the 2019 Outstanding Student Education Awards, organised by the Cambridge Centre for Teaching and Learning, while Jess O'Brien (2nd year Law) was elected as the CUSU Disabled Students' Officer. I remain deeply grateful to the energetic contributions of successive JCR and MCR committees, as well as to our committed Tutors, Graduate Tutors, Domus Tutor, Admissions Tutors, Tutorial and Admissions Office staff, and Mental Health and Wellbeing team.

The Graduate, Tutor's Report

Dr Ramji Venkataramanan
Deputy Graduate Tutor

“The MCR has done a fantastic job of ensuring that Trinity Hall has one of the most welcoming, vibrant and energetic MCRs in Cambridge.”

High quality of our applications

This was a year of growth for the graduate community at Trinity Hall, with a large increase in the number of new graduate students. It was also a year of change, with Dr Tamsin O’Connell serving as Acting Graduate Tutor, while the Graduate Tutor, Dr Sasha Turchyn, was away on a year of well-deserved sabbatical leave. We thank Dr O’Connell for her stellar work as Acting Graduate Tutor and for her unwavering support of our graduate community. Huge thanks are also due to Charlotte Morgan-Shelbourne for her invaluable contribution as Graduate Administrator over the past few years.

We are proud of our vibrant and diverse MCR, which currently has 262 graduate student members and 30 postdoctoral members (usually researchers at the beginning of their academic careers). This year, we had a much larger intake than in the past few years, with 106 new graduate students admitted. The offer-to-acceptance percentage was 65%, higher than our long-term average of 60%. This reflects the high quality of our applications as well as the support of Trinity Hall alumni and friends who have funded several graduate studentships.

This year we funded 15 new graduate students and 19 PhD students, and are grateful to the donors who made this possible. A generous donation from the Philomathia Foundation will support eight MPhil scholars and two PhD students in African Studies over a five-year period. We welcomed the programme’s first two scholars this year. We also welcomed the second recipient of the Rhodes-Moorhouse studentship, jointly funded by Trinity Hall, the Department of Engineering and the RAF. We have a number of other studentships funded in partnership with other organisations. The Federal Court of Victoria/Trinity Hall studentship, awarded to an LLM student each year, is jointly funded with the University of Melbourne Law School. We also offered several Master’s and PhD studentships jointly funded with the UK Research Councils and the Cambridge Trust.

Our graduate students can also apply for a grant to support a host of research activities. This year we awarded an average of £300 to each graduate. We also offer limited funding to students who suffer financial hardship due to unforeseen events. Thanks to the generosity of our donors, Trinity Hall is able to provide more graduate funding than the majority of other Cambridge colleges. However, there are still many talented students who cannot join the College or the University due to lack of funding. The College’s plans for the future aim to further alleviate financial pressure on graduate students.

The President of the MCR, Matthew Wales (2014), along with his committee has done a fantastic job of ensuring that Trinity Hall has one of the most welcoming, vibrant and energetic MCRs in Cambridge. He has been ably supported by the postdoctoral representative Dr Mark Pilling, who represents the interests of the College's postdoctoral community in the MCR. The MCR organised many popular social events such as themed Formal Halls and games nights throughout the year. There were also academic events such as the McMenemy Seminars and the Marshall McLuhan Symposium, where MCR members presented their research to a broad audience. The MCR space received a much needed refurbishment and a new audio system.

The person with the most day-to-day contact with the MCR members is the Postgraduate Administrator. We welcomed Clare Kerr to this role in February. Since her arrival, she has been a wonderful resource for the MCR and a fantastic colleague for the Graduate Tutors. We would also like to thank Vicky Mills (Admissions Officer), Rosie Ince (Tutorial Registrar), Saskia Burton (Tutorial Administrator) and Julie Powley (Tutorial Office Manager). We are fortunate to have such a knowledgeable and friendly administration, under the overall guidance of the Senior Tutor Dr Clare Jackson. Finally, we are grateful to the College's exceptional welfare team for providing essential support to the graduate community.

The Admissions Tutor's Report

The admissions process is in a state of flux

This has been a year of transition for the Admissions Team. The year began with a change of personnel: after nine years of brilliant service, Dr Andrew Murray stood down in October, when I took over from him as Admissions Tutor for Science, and Dr Stephen Plant took over from me as Admissions Tutor for Arts and Humanities.

Michaelmas Term was spent processing hundreds of applications from a huge variety of impressive UK and international applicants. It is always a pleasure to see so many talented students with real passion for their subjects, and the task of selecting amongst them is extremely challenging. Although we no longer have the AS Level marks that used to provide a key indicator of academic performance and potential, the pre-interview assessment tests introduced in 2016 have now 'settled down' and been shown to provide useful information. However, they are just one part of a complex picture. The autumn also saw us fielding multiple Freedom of Information requests and responding to press coverage relating to our track record of widening participation. There is much to disagree with about the media depiction of our admissions processes and outcomes, but we welcome the scrutiny and remain fully committed to ensuring that Trinity Hall admits applicants from all backgrounds based on academic potential. This year we were, as always, as rigorous and fair as possible, thanks to a huge investment of time and energy from the Fellowship and our Admissions Office staff.

January saw the departure of our Schools Liaison Officer (SLO) but the energy and commitment of Vicky Mills (Admissions Officer) and the Fellowship led to successful springtime outreach activities in our link areas of Bath, Bristol, Somerset and South Gloucestershire, and in College. Our new SLO, Izzy Sanders, has now started work and organised a fantastic pair of Open Days in the blazing sunshine of early July.

“It is always a pleasure to see so many talented students with real passion for their subjects, and the task of selecting amongst them is extremely challenging.”

More broadly, the admissions process is in a state of flux: the new Office for Students is demanding very ambitious widening participation targets; the government is considering profound changes to higher education funding; and Cambridge is receiving increasing numbers of applications from overseas students – many of whom are academically outstanding, but whose qualifications and availability for interview add to the administrative complexities of the admissions process. In response to this shifting landscape, a cross-

University review panel has been set up to consider the philosophy and processes for admissions, and Trinity Hall will continue to work as part of the collegiate University to ensure that we attract and admit the most talented students that we can.

We are also taking an exciting step at the College level: after an intensive selection process, the College has appointed a new Director of Admissions, Dr Marcus Tomalin. Dr Tomalin will replace the current undergraduate and graduate admissions tutors. He will have overall responsibility for all admissions to Trinity Hall and for our outreach and recruitment programmes. By dedicating a full-time post to these vital activities, Trinity Hall will be well placed to develop effective strategies for attracting and selecting the very best students to the College, no matter what the national or global context.

It has been a pleasure and honour to serve as Admissions Tutor for the past two years, and to work with so many wonderful colleagues. The new Director of Admissions will be stepping in to an extremely rewarding and exciting role!

The Dean's Report

Build even stronger links

During the year, I lectured on Charles Taylor's landmark book A Secular Age (2007). Taylor, a Canadian philosopher, aims to figure out what has taken western people from 'a society in which it was virtually impossible not to believe in God, to one in which faith, even for the staunchest believer, is one human possibility among others'. With neither applause nor nostalgia, Taylor explores how the ways people in the west 'imagine their social existence, how they fit together with others, how things go on between them and their fellows, the expectations which are normally met, and the deeper normative options and images which underlie these expectations' have shifted significantly in recent centuries.

The changes Taylor describes have consequences for College chaplaincy, for example the rise of therapeutic forms of counselling for students, or the striking decline in religious 'literacy' among students. Even if one wanted to turn back the clock on secularisation, it can't be done. So, what is the proper response? In Chapel, the answer is to continue to read Scripture faithfully, and to make sense of it with fine preaching and music. In the Lent Term, sermons focused on the seven 'I am' sayings of Jesus in John's Gospel. Rooting sermon series in biblical texts, rather than poems or paintings, helps students experience the Bible as a living word.

One such sermon was by the Very Revd Chris Dallistone, Dean of Peterborough, whose daughter Isabelle sings in the choir. Other senior Anglicans included the Ven Liz Adekunle, Archdeacon of Hackney.

Revd Dr Stephen Plant
Dean and Runcie Fellow

“Particularly memorable was the theologically textured sermon by theological ethicist Professor David Clough of Chester University for Remembrance Day.”

Preachers with College connections included former Dean, the Revd Canon Dr Anthony Phillips, who preached at the Commemoration of Benefactors, and alumnus Roger McKinlay (1979).

The Chair of the Methodist East Anglia District, the Revd Julian Pursehouse, joined us, as did the Revd The Lord

Griffiths of Burry Port, who made unforgettable links as a Labour frontbencher, between Jesus' saying 'I am the good shepherd' and the process of shepherding legislation through the House of Lords. From the Academy, Dr James Carleton-Paget, Reader in New Testament in Cambridge and Dr Peter Williams, Principal of Tyndale House, brought their expertise to bear.

For me, particularly memorable was the theologically textured sermon by theological ethicist Professor David Clough of Chester University for Remembrance Day, which drew depth from the book he had co-authored on war (Faith and Force: A Christian Debate about War, 2007).

The choir continues to make their essential contribution to evening services. At the end of the Lent Term they sang Duruflé's Requiem, Opus 9 (accompanied by Seb Gillot (2012) and Tom Wraith (2008)). Andrew Arthur, our Director of Music, though on leave from his other College duties during Lent and Easter, continued to direct the choir. He was assisted by Graduate Organ Scholar James Grimwood (2015), who at the end of four years' service was one of those leaving the College this year. The text and translations of anthems used during services have been added to Chapel term cards this year. Janine Arnott (2017) also left the Chapel after two years on attachment with us from Ridley Hall to move to a curacy in the Chester Diocese.

One final change this year has been to invite members of the Christian Union in College to lead one evening prayers in place of Choral Evensong one week each term, which has helped build even stronger links between the Chapel and this independent student society.

Alumni Relations Report

LinkHall is live. This year we launched a new online alumni community, LinkHall, which offers an improved experience for our alumni and students. We want members to feel they can engage with College and each other in a meaningful way that remains relevant as they progress throughout their career. LinkHall has enhanced functionality for posting job advertisements, seeking careers advice and mentoring. We are very grateful for a donation from Graham Ross-Russell (1953) for making this possible.

More than 1,500 guests attended at least one of our 37 events throughout the year. These included 16 events in College, seven different locations in the UK and 14 locations overseas. This year we held our inaugural 'From Cambridge to Capital' lecture series, where Fellows present their research at a London venue. We were pleased to have Professor Tony Purnell talk about engineering an Olympic sport at the Royal Academy of Engineering in May.

We held reunions for 1964-66, and 1988-1990, as well as the MA for 2012 and anniversaries for 10, 25, 50 and 60 years since matriculation. It was particularly touching to hear of the positive experiences of those who matriculated in 1959.

More than 35% of alumni have attended a Trinity Hall event in the past five years. It is always a pleasure to meet alumni back in College and when we travel. We hope to see many more of you at one of our events during the next year.

As I write, we are receiving replies to our alumni survey. Your opinions mean a lot to us and we use the results to improve our services to alumni. If you have any feedback at any point please contact us on alumnioffice@trinhall.cam.ac.uk.

The College is mindful of issues regarding sustainability and we have taken action this year to review the packaging we send our publications in, so that it is more environmentally friendly. This issue of the Review has been posted to you in biodegradable, compostable film derived from potato starch. You can update your mailing preferences with us at any time via: alumni.trinhall.cam.ac.uk/updateweb.

“Throughout the past academic year, donations have enabled the start of works on the WongAvery Music Gallery.”

Development Report

We are very grateful to everyone who has supported us throughout the year. The last financial year was one of our more successful years in terms of funds raised. We raised £4,684,960 from 1,186 donors.

The income from academic fees currently covers less than half the cost of an undergraduate education and meeting this shortfall stretches the College's resources. Philanthropic support plays an important part in the College's income and in enabling us to undertake further initiatives to support our student community. For example, donations this year have enabled us to offer postgraduate studentships, meaning nine graduates were able to come to Trinity Hall in October 2019 who otherwise would have been unable to do so.

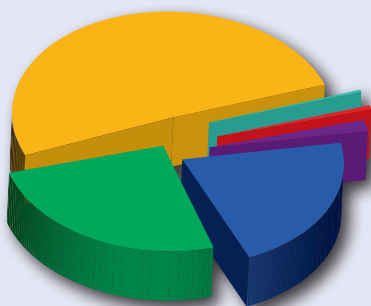

Throughout the past academic year, donations have enabled the start of works on the WongAvery Music Gallery. We were pleased to invite the trustees of the Avery-Tsui Foundation to a commencement of works ceremony on 4 July.

The Telephone Campaign was particularly successful in Easter. We spoke to over 1,300 alumni – the greatest number in any campaign – and raised £280,000.

Donations totalling £3,115, 945 were received during the year, which will be used during the next academic year to:

- offer nine graduate studentships for 2019/20

Income received: for different purposes

Unrestricted	£1,590,404
New buildings	£789,170
Student support	£660,191
Refurbishment	£57,062

- offer further funding to undergraduates facing financial hardship, including the provision of top-up bursaries
- refurbish H staircase
- improve facilities in the Jerwood
- digitise some of the medieval manuscripts in the Old Library
- offer grants to graduates attending conferences and to medics on their elective
- undertake access and widening participation initiatives, as well as the appointment of a new Director of Admissions

Income received: source of donation

Alumni	£1,013,136
Legacies from alumni	£1,012,290
Trusts and foundations	£989,170

The Junior Bursar's Report

A once-in-a-generation opportunity to revitalise areas of College

The last 12 months have been busy for all departments. The unrest and uncertainty of Brexit has required the College to consider additional contingency planning and reassurances to students, staff and Fellows of what this all might mean, if only we knew. On the back of a very hot and long summer, staff prepared for a new intake of students and to welcome back those returning.

The College continues to investigate its long-term position through master planning as well as manage its way through the uncertainty of what might change in the coming weeks and months as we help guide and support our non-British students, staff and Fellows through a very difficult and uncertain period.

We have engaged a consultant to work with us to put together a Master Plan for the College's operational and academic buildings. This will lead to a once-in-a-generation opportunity to revitalise areas of College in order to make best use of the space. As noted in last year's report, one of our biggest challenges is catching up with, and keeping on top of, general decoration and refurbishment of student rooms. In this last year we have redecorated the Jerwood Library, Q staircase, the LSR, Wychfield New Build staircases, and a number of Central Site offices, and re-laid the floor of the Central Site kitchens. This was in part made possible by alumni donations for which we are very grateful.

This still leaves us with many staircases to either decorate or refurbish. Our dilemma is whether we redecorate a staircase of rooms in the knowledge that they need a more substantial overhaul – in respect of services, furniture and welfare facilities – or concentrate on those that just need a coat of paint and work out a programme for the rooms that need much more resource.

Work on the WongAvery Music Gallery, the new music performance and practice space in Avery Court, commenced at the start of the calendar year. After a slow start due to archaeological investigations and dealing with contaminated soil, the basement is now constructed and the ground floor slab has been poured. We are programmed to complete the build in July 2020 and be ready for academic year 2020/21.

The June Event Committee 2018/19 put on a superb event this year. Despite the weather, where it rained solidly for 90 minutes prior to the doors opening, the event was a huge success. A particularly peculiar sight was the whole of Front Court filled with students at a silent disco, as occasional lines of popular songs emanated from various groups. We hope this event sets the ground work to continue this popular annual event.

From an operational point of view, our staff remain the key to the successful smooth and friendly running of the College. We have had some changes over the last 12 months including the retirement of our Thompson's Lane Housekeeper after 18 years. We have a new Manciple and are about to welcome a new Head Porter, however, overall staff retention and recruitment in College is in a good place.

The Head of Conference and Catering Services' Report

Outstanding catering and a first-class hospitality team

It has been a year filled with beautiful weddings, each unique in style and detail. We have seen the Dining Hall transformed by the most stunning flower arrangements that trailed a scent of roses throughout the College; the Aula Bar draped in white, reminiscent of an Ibiza beach club; and a piper welcome guests into the Chapel with a blast of his bagpipes and lead the newly married couple into their wedding breakfast.

We have particularly enjoyed helping to plan and coordinate wedding celebrations for a number of alumni and Fellows over the past year. This year we had our first born-and-raised Trinity Hall bride; an alumna herself and the daughter of two alumni. It was a truly memorable day for everyone involved. We even managed to arrange for the bridal party to dress in the mother-of-the-bride's former bedroom on Central Site.

Civil ceremonies in the Graham Storey Room and Lesley Stephen Room have proved to be popular, with drinks and canapés on the River Terrace and punting for guests – weather seemingly not always an issue on a wedding day! Our Conference and Events team aim to turn each couple's dreams into reality, working with them to create something that will match their personalities. A recent bride wrote us to say that her wedding day 'was just like being in a movie'. It is an honour and a privilege to have such a personal involvement in a couple's big day.

Many other celebrations have been hosted here, from christenings, anniversaries and birthdays, as well as the many term-time student and Fellows' events. We are so fortunate to enjoy such a beautiful College venue, which looks stunning throughout the seasons, along with outstanding catering and a first-class hospitality team.

The front of house team has shown a keen interest in learning about the wine we serve and have all completed the Wine & Spirit Education Trust (WSET) Level 1 Award, with others reaching levels two and three. We were able to put our tasting skills into practice with alumnus, Dr Jason Humphries (1989) when he showcased his Digby Fine English sparkling wines earlier in the year. Other wine tastings have been held with the students to ensure that they have an input on the wine served during term in the Aula Bar to suit all palates and pockets.

It is now custom that I report on the students' Superhall themes. Tasked with making the MCR Halloween Hall a little bit different, 'There's an ant in my soup!' was served, complete with a sprinkle of BBQ flavoured mealworms and Queen Leafcutter Ants, and the JCR had 'Crittter Fritters' for their futuristic themed dinner. The best dietary requirement was 'vegetarian but eats ants!' A sustainable source of protein but not one we plan to feature regularly on menus – well, not for now!

As always we enjoyed seeing many of you over the past year at alumni reunions and anniversary dinners as well as a number of private celebrations and alumni-related business events. We look forward to welcoming you back soon.

The Librarian's Report

One of the best examples of post-war building in Cambridge

The Jerwood Library

The Jerwood Library was 20 years old in 2018. This milestone was marked by a celebratory event in Michaelmas Term, which included a talk by the Library's architect and Trinity Hall alumnus, Tristan Rees Roberts (1967). There was also a fabulous cake in the shape of the Library, created from the architectural plans. Both the event and cake were much enjoyed by Trinity Hall members.

Since its construction, the Library has gained recognition as one of the best examples of post-war building in Cambridge so it was particularly fitting that, in its anniversary year, it was voted Cambridge city centre's favourite building of the last 50 years. The competition was organised by Cambridge City Council and the Greater Cambridge Shared Planning Service to mark the 50th anniversary of the central conservation area in Cambridge. The Jerwood Library received several nominations from members of the public, showing that the building is appreciated not only by those using the Library but by all those entering or leaving the city centre from Garrett Hostel Lane or punting past on the river. The College was delighted to be presented with its award in June 2019.

As well as enjoying these celebrations, we have continued to upgrade the Library environment. Most of the reading rooms were redecorated and re-carpeted over the summer vacation. We have also purchased new chairs for the Computer room, a display cabinet to show off some of our rare books, and an updated book checkout machine. The refurbishment has ensured that this exceptionally popular space continues to be a comfortable and attractive place to study, and is thanks to funds generously donated by alumni.

The Old Library

It is a delicate balancing act to preserve our Old Library while ensuring that the historic building and its collection is accessible to visitors and scholars. Cracks had begun to appear in the ceiling and walls over a number of years and it has become increasingly apparent that conservation work may be necessary to safeguard this important historic building. Environmental monitoring equipment has recently been installed to enable us to get a better picture of what work will be required.

Another priority is to widen access to our historic print collections. Following on from the start made last year, we have continued to digitise some of our manuscripts. Two important items from the College archives: The Parker Register and Master's Statute book have joined our collection on the Cambridge Digital Library.

As well as digitisation, we have increased access to our collection by contributing to the Material Evidence in Incunabula (MEI) project. This free, international database hosted and maintained by the Consortium of European Research Libraries (CERL) is designed to record and search for ownership and provenance information in 15th-century printed books. Trinity Hall has around 30 incunabula, the earliest of which is a Vulgate Bible (1472) which was printed by Peter Schöffer, an apprentice of Johannes Gutenberg. Provenance research is an area of increasing interest to researchers and it is now possible to follow the history of our incunabula through the centuries from the place they were printed, to their various owners, and finally to the Library.

Through these two projects, we have provided new opportunities for the research of our collection of manuscripts and rare books, and we look forward to learning more about them.

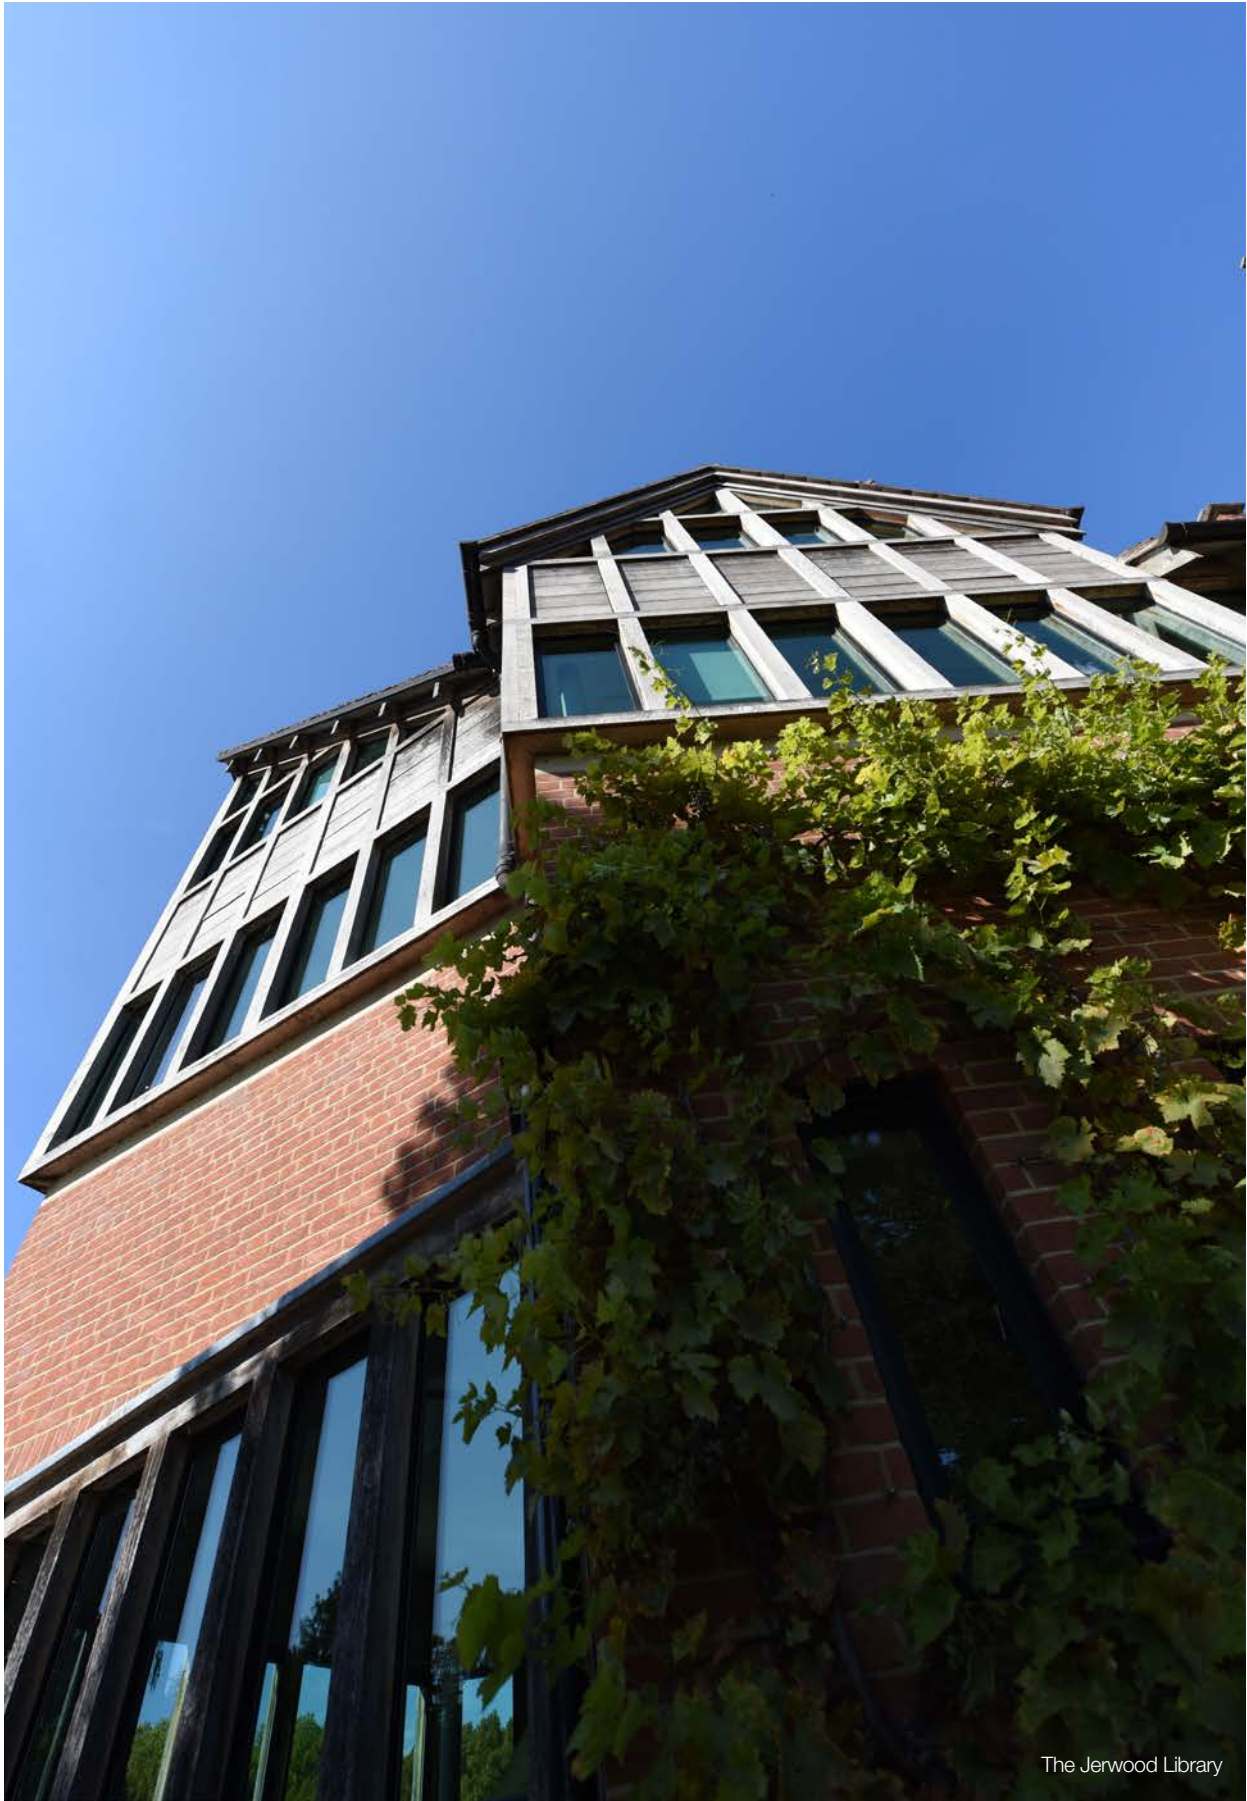

I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who has supported the libraries this year.

The JCR President's Report

Changes this year will benefit students

As another year at Trinity Hall comes to an end, it is worthwhile reflecting on what parts of College life have changed, as well as what has remained unchanged across the year. Cambridge is a place that thrives on traditions, but I hope that some of the changes this year will benefit students whilst preserving what has made Trinity Hall such a close, friendly and accomplished community.

The end of Lent Term held the inaugural offer holders' Open Day, which was organised by Access Officer Aoibh Bourke off the back of work started by last year's committee. Eighty-two offer holders were welcomed to Trinity Hall to get a closer idea of what student life looks like at College. Thirty-four student helpers gave tours and answered questions, hopefully breaking down some of the mystery of Cambridge University life to the prospective students.

Green and Ethics Officer Jacob Smith set up an online 'community fridge' in Lent Term, aimed at reducing food waste within College by helping to distribute any unwanted food among students. Along a similar vein, the sale of College-branded reusable coffee cups continued to help students to live more sustainably whilst fostering collegiate spirit. Meanwhile, the gown donation scheme continued, allowing graduating students to pass on their gowns to incoming freshers who need them. Thank you to all those alumni who donated their gown.

Much has remained the same, with Matriculation and Graduation Dinners, Halfway Hall, Marriage Formal, Superhalls and VIVAs forming the backbone of social events this year. The end-of-year JCR garden party proved hugely successful, with many students from both Trinity Hall and the wider University keen to spend an afternoon in the idyllic surroundings of Latham Lawn. Special thanks must also be made to the June Event committee, who were able to put on a brilliant event enjoyed by many hundreds of students, despite last year's event being cancelled due to insufficient ticket sales.

I look forward to seeing which of these initiatives continue into future years, and what aspects of student life will change. The refurbishment of the JCR, currently an underused area, should provide a more welcoming, comfortable and useful space that will bring together students from across College as they relax, away from their work.

The MCR President's Report

Working to expand inclusively and accessibility

The MCR has once again been a hive of activity throughout the year, with a busy calendar of academic and social events. We've been working to expand inclusivity and accessibility of our events, and to improve academic support.

As an MCR, we pride ourselves on the wide range of social events we hold, including our weekly Grad Halls and the termly themed Superhalls. A highlight was the Murder Mystery Superhall, where many members of the MCR threw themselves into acting out a play throughout the night, whilst the other guests tried to figure out whodunnit. The now traditional Harry Potter Superhall also went down well, with everyone getting into the spirit and donning their costumes for the occasion.

Other events included a Eurovision screening, an Easter Egg Hunt and a visit to our sister college, University College Oxford. We also had a green themed cocktail night, raising awareness of green issues in a fun environment. We've been working to reduce waste at our social events by introducing compostable cups, and we hope to continue improving our green credentials.

This year, we scaled up our annual Garden Party into the Wychfield Summer Fair. The organising committee did an amazing job, putting together a fun afternoon of unlimited ice cream and live music right here at Wychfield. We had a variety of party games for everyone to enjoy – a highlight being a very intense game of musical chairs.

Our weekly McMenemy Seminars have once again proved popular, and the annual McLuhan Symposium, this year on the theme of sex, proved an engaging forum with a focus on encouraging interdisciplinary conversation. Many thanks to the organisers Calvin Kraft and Jules O'Dwyer for putting together a full day of interesting talks, including some excellent keynote speakers.

We are now at the time of year where we congratulate and bid farewell to those who have just graduated. As they move on, we also look forward to another year of incoming students, bringing with them fresh ideas and energy. We hope to set a theme for the whole upcoming year with a wide-ranging array of events at the start of Michaelmas Term to encourage more members of the MCR to get together for a wider range of social occasions.

Our committee this year has thoroughly engaged in their roles with everyone jumping in to organise events. We also appreciate the support of College Fellows and staff. We have said goodbye to Graduate Administrator Charlotte Morgan-Shelbourne, who has worked hard to provide support to Graduate students in College, and welcomed Clare Kerr who has already made an impression on many members of the MCR. The catering team has also worked tirelessly, helping us to arrange themed formal menus and making our weekly Grad Halls run smoothly.

Finally, we'd like to wish all those who have left the MCR this year all the best for the future, and we hope that they will fondly remember their time in the MCR for many years to come.

College Societies

Board Game Society (JCR)

Alannah King (2016)

The 2018/19 academic year has been exciting and busy for the Board Game Society. We acquired many new games, chosen by our members, including Secret Hitler, Paper Tales, and The Resistance, and continued to hold our weekly board gaming groups. We also had a wonderful session with board game designer Friedemann Friese, known for his games, such as Powergrid, and his trademark love of green. As well as chatting to Friedemann about board game design, we also play-tested his new game, Fast Sloths, which we all enjoyed.

During Pink Week, the JCR and MCR board game societies teamed up to run a fundraising board gaming event, raising an additional £30. Following on from this success, other joint gaming sessions with the JCR and MCR were organised.

Chris, the treasurer, and I have greatly enjoyed our year in charge of the Board Game Society and hope that people have enjoyed coming to our events and borrowing board games. We will now hand over to Anish Das (2018) and Ivan Ribeiro (2017) as President and Treasurer for 2019/20. We know they'll do a great job!

Fashion and Luxury Goods Society

Giulia Battaglia Trovato (2016)

Trinity Hall Fashion and Luxury Goods Society (THFLGS) aims to bring together students from Trinity Hall and from the wider Cambridge University community who have a shared interest in fashion and luxury goods, and to ignite this passion further.

We provide students with a breadth of resources and contacts so that they have the opportunity to reach the heart of the fashion and luxury goods industry, explore their passion and engage with leaders in the field. We host presentations, panel discussions and networking events, thus giving students a taste for the multifaceted nature of the industry.

Founded in October 2018, THFLGS has been extremely successful. We have had the pleasure of hosting seven events with: CHANEL, Dior, Louis Vuitton, Louis XIII, Bicester Village, Raffaele Stella Brienza (Senior Designer) and the Lopresto Collection (classic vintage cars). The President of CHANEL Fashion Europe and the President of Louis Vuitton North Europe, Middle East and Africa were amongst our top speakers. Members of the THFLGS Committee were also invited to London Fashion Week by Bicester Village and to a private viewing of the exhibition Christian Dior: Designer of Dreams by the House of Dior, providing an insight into the artistic side of the industry. The Committee is very proud of its achievements and is looking forward to another exciting academic year ahead!

FemFo

Laura Lewis (2018)
and Giselle Parnall (2018)

Over the course of the year, FemFo has delivered a series of forums that sought to explore body image, sexual assault and epistemology, sex work and decriminalisation, disability, feminism and art, and safe spaces, among a host of other topics. While our forums are spaces to offer opinion or experience, or simply listen, FemFo has also put on social events and a film night. Beyond these weekly events, FemFo attended the annual Reclaim The Night march – a public march held across multiple cities around the globe to both demand justice for survivors of sexual assault, and to demand the right to use and occupy public and private space without fear. To close off the year, we held our annual FemFo Garden Party where we offered a selection of food and drink, and had two acts perform. One of the performers, Jenny O’Sullivan, sang about gender and sexuality, topics we love to explore at FemFo. Looking to next year, as co-presidents, Giselle and I are excited to be taking over from Stella and Rory, and to continue the great things FemFo has already achieved. It appears as though abolishing the patriarchy is next on our list!

History Society

Phillip Buckley (2017)
and Olivia Dodd (2017)

It has been an exciting year for the Trinity Hall History Society, hosting a plethora of talks across Michaelmas and Lent. These covered diverse subjects and chronologies from feminist business in the 1960s to an analysis of testaments made in the 1641 rebellion in Ireland, and attracted historians and non-historians alike. A highlight was a panel from our very own Trinity Hall trio of Dr Pedro Ramos Pinto, Dr John Pollard (1963) and the Master on the subject of fascism and religion, which packed out the Lecture Theatre. The year culminated in the annual dinner in May, held in the Graham Storey Room. Dr Annabelle Brett, a historian of political thought was our guest speaker. This was enjoyed by all guests; history undergraduates, Fellows and guests of the society. We wish Yasmin, Gabriel and Eve the very best of luck in managing the society next year and look forward to seeing what they have in store!

Law Society

Izzy Aughterson (2017)
and Zohra Nabi (2017)

The Trinity Hall Law Society (THLS) has enjoyed a great calendar of events this year. We welcomed a slightly smaller cohort of only five incoming undergraduates, and also one student studying the accelerated two-year course. Though small in number, it was great to see the first years enthusiastic about participating with THLS events, including four of them competing in the THLS Annual Moot. The Moot was kindly judged by one of our fantastic alumni, The Rt Hon Lord Justice Bean (1972), who provided thoughtful feedback and interesting insight into some relevant cases. The Moot was followed by our annual dinner, which was a fantastic evening thanks to the generous sponsorship of the society by Slaughter and May, and Veronica’s (Vice-President) meticulous planning. We also welcomed one of our own Fellows, Dr Lorand Bartels, for a speaker’s event where he discussed the clinching legal issues involved with the UK’s exit from the European Union. We look forward to welcoming new lawyers to the society and to another great year of THLS events!

Medical and Veterinary Society

and Marina Awadalla (2016)

This year saw much change for Trinity Hall’s Medical and Veterinary Society as we formed its inaugural committee. In addition to the existing roles of Co-Presidents, we introduced elected positions for Treasurer, First Year Representative, Veterinary Representative, Resource Officer and Logistics Officer. This enabled us to expand the range of events we host as well as build a much-needed online platform for sharing resources and revision material. We hope that this platform will continue to grow in the future.

We also welcomed Dr Rona Smith (Staff Fellow in Medicine and alumna of Trinity Hall) as guest speaker at this year’s annual dinner, whose talk was enjoyed by all in attendance. The Medical and Veterinary Society prides itself on being welcoming to students of all years, with social events throughout the year. This is made possible through the enthusiasm of students and teaching staff. We would like to thank all the medical Fellows and supervisors at Trinity Hall for their continued commitment towards the society. In particular, we would like to thank Professor John Bradley for providing support to all students throughout the year. We look forward to seeing the society continue its growth next year and beyond.

Music Society

Sinead Lucas (2016)

It has been another exciting year for Trinity Hall Music Society. As always it is pleasing to see our recitals grow in quality and popularity. Michaelmas Term opened with an oboe recital by Thomas Hammond (Robinson College), accompanied by our own Henry Baxter (2016). We also continued the tradition of having recitals in the Master's Lodge, hosting soprano Anna-Luise Wagner and pianist Adam McDonagh, who presented us with a varied programme of operatic arias in four different languages. As always, the most popular event of the year proved to be the Christmas Recital, where we were fortunate enough to welcome back the Mistral Winds, an IAS Wind Quintet featuring Trinity Hall's Ella McCoshan (2017). Other highlights included a Trinity Hall Barbershop ensemble, and Daisy Widdicombe (2018) performing a festive song written by her late grandfather, Trevor Widdicombe.

In Lent Term, we were treated to a special performance in the Dining Hall: Lawrence Bissell (2017), last year's Trinity Hall Instrumental Award holder, brightened up a cold Saturday evening with a bagpipe recital, joined by Organ Scholar Justin Stollery (2018) on the organ. Meanwhile, the Lent Term recitals series continued with a recital of English Art Song organised by Francis Brown (2017) and featuring several members of the Chapel Choir, which even included a world première of a song by John Raynor. Our Graduate Senior Organ Scholar, James Grimwood (2015), proved that his talents were not limited to the organ with a piano recital in the Master's Lodge: a programme including works by Byrd, Gibbons and Bach was a rather fitting way for James to conclude his four years of contribution to the musical life of Trinity Hall.

Last but not least, our Freshers' Recital saw many new faces take to the stage and demonstrate the newest musical talent at Trinity Hall; it was particularly pleasing to see that several instrumental groups had formed for this recital, all delivering high-quality performances.

College Sports

Badminton Club

James Wiltshire (2017)

Trinity Hall Badminton Club has gone from strength to strength this year, increasing the trend of growth the club has been experiencing from last year. Moving to a new location at the University Sports Centre, it was heartening to see so many new faces at the society during Michaelmas, with fresher's keen to get involved and take well-earned breaks from their studies on a Saturday or Sunday evening. This year, the team played its first league and Cuppers match in memory, with the team performing admirably for their first attempt, especially with the vast majority of the team being freshers. Credit must go to Anmol Arora (2016), without whose help the club would be nowhere near its current size. His enthusiasm and guidance has helped the club grow over the past two academic years to its current size. I hope going forward that the club continues to go from strength to strength.

Boat Club

Angus Fotherby (2016)

Trinity Hall Boat Club has enjoyed another year of success throughout 2018 and 2019. With the retirement of Martin Fordham and the arrival of the new boatman, Paul Townshend, it has been a year of change in the club. However, with another strong crop of novices to fill our boats we have enjoyed another great set of bumps campaigns; fielding seven boats across all divisions, each of high quality.

For the first time in almost ten years, both of the first boats are now back in the first Mays division, with men up five over four days for their blades and the women escaping the sandwich boat position after a tough week to return to the first division, following on from their amazing performance in the Lents, where they earned their blades.

The performance in the lower boats has been equally impressive, with promising athletes doing very well throughout the year, winning or placing highly in on-Cam races. All of our lower boats qualified for Bumps without having to get on and, notably, the 3rd men's VIII earned their blades for the third consecutive year.

I'm pleased to be able to leave the club in the capable hands of Alix, Irina, Jake and Charlotte, who will no doubt continue the run of success that the club has been enjoying in recent years.

On a final note, we are deeply indebted to all of our supporters and coaches. On behalf of the whole club I would like to express our heartfelt thanks.

Cricket Club

Arthur Barnard (2016)

It is with the greatest of pleasure, and slight concern, that no authorly verbosity or excessive list of superlatives will suffice in summarising the truly extraordinary season that was enjoyed by the Trinity Hall Cricket Club (THCC), that we can delight in reporting that THCC enjoyed the greatest season in living memory. Such was our success that 'we hate to lose' became a mantra for the team, not as a shallow boast but a resolute statement of fact. The club reached the semi-finals of Cuppers on no less than a four match unbeaten streak, storming the group stages of the competition with prowess and style.

After a regime of winter netting, we got off to a flyer wearing crisp whites against St Catharine's, winning by nine wickets; their total of 84 being chased in merely 7.4 overs. The game included a blistering 4-3 spell by Sam Milliken-Smith (2018).

Next, a nail-biter versus Trinity. Fine bowling from Sumudu Herath (2016) and Seth Aycock (2017) saw the team pile on the pressure and restrict Trinity on a tough wicket to 78, only for Tit Hall to battle heroically to 70-7 with two overs to go. Reminiscent of Monty Panesar and Jimmy Anderson at Cardiff in the 2009 Ashes, Daniel Surkes (2017) and Laurence Daly (2017) carefully negotiated the team over the line, to the delight of the fans.

Against Christ's we again were firing on all cylinders: Torrance (72), Gray (62) with a good spread of wickets from bowlers Daly, Brannan, Jackson and Anand securing a 58 run win.

A 'bowl-off' against Clare on a drizzling morning at Wychfield was then somewhat of a lucky break to take us through to a semi-final versus Emmanuel, where we trudged in the rain and bad light to just fall short of the mark. While saddened not to have graced the hallowed turf at Fenners, THCC shone through as a jewel in College's crown. Long may it continue.

Mixed Lacrosse

Lucy Pinder (2017) and Olivia Dodd (2017)

The Trinity Hall Mixed Lacrosse team had a great season, armed with new stash paid for by the JCR. Aided by some keen new freshers and some second year converts from the football teams, the team was able to maintain their place in the competitive top division in both terms. A notable match was one against Clare, the eventual league victors; we were the only team to deny Clare a victory throughout their campaign. The season ended with the annual Cuppers tournament, held at the St John's pitches. Injury amongst players and tough matches meant we were unable to proceed beyond the group stages, but we look forward to what the next season has in store!

Mixed Netball

Ben Peart (2016) and Tati Chapman (2016)

This year was one of the most successful years for Mixed Netball at Trinity Hall. We were promoted not once, but twice, both in Michaelmas and Lent, ending up in the first division for Michaelmas 2019. We were delighted by the enthusiasm and commitment of the keen new freshers especially. It was not uncommon for us to have over 20 people turn up for what is 7-a-side sport. This year we also received a new item of stash: caps! These have been the envy of all our opponents, though have proved impractical in windy weather. Cuppers was especially cold, wet and windy. Summer term was warmer, and Wychfield hosted social netball under sunset skies. A wider group were involved in this uncompetitive netball and Clare College also played with us. It was lovely to meet some other netballers to play with socially in exam term.

Overall, the friendliest of all College sports teams had a fabulous year – netball was always a highlight of our week. Thank you to all who contributed and played and a special thanks to our leavers – Harry Brannan (2016) and Jack Cornish (2016), who both seem to play every sport going. Hope you continue netball in the future, challenging the women at their own game. Good luck to next year's team, and to co-captains Taba Gibb (2017) and Olivia Dodd (2017). Hope you survive in the first division!

Women's Football

Izzy Aughterson (2017)

This season has been another fantastic year for women's football at Trinity Hall. It seems to take us a match or two to get into our game and our first match of the season was the only loss we suffered in the league. After finding a fantastic striker in one of our incoming freshers, Eve, our luck certainly improved. We finished the league tied with Pembroke for the most points, with them winning the title on goal difference.

We had a strong run through the first few rounds of the Cuppers plate, including a win against Emmanuel in which we lost count of the goals, and Joanna ventured out of goal to put her name on the scoreboard. We were disappointed to be knocked out in the quarter-final by Caius/Hughes, though we put up a good fight and they didn't leave with a clean sheet.

We were lucky enough to have our very own 'varsity' match on a remarkably sunny Sunday in February when we hosted St Edmund (Teddy) Hall's team from Oxford. The match was great fun and not taken particularly seriously by either side (with Teddy Hall taking the term 'rolling' subs very literally) but we were delighted to secure a tidy 3-0 win, nonetheless.

The year saw regular appearances from one of our porters, Kelly, who, along with THWFC veteran Lillian, provided much-valued consistency in defence. We also welcomed back a recent, and greatly missed, alumna, Ellen, to play with us in November.

Joanna has been a fantastic co-captain of the team. She is not only kind and encouraging but is undoubtedly the best goalkeeper in the league. She admirably balanced the role with playing basketball at University level and her heavy workload as a second-year medical student.

THWFC remains the best thing I have been involved with whilst at Trinity Hall, and I feel so lucky to have captained the team this year. It was a testament to our team spirit for a full team to turn up on the last Friday of Easter Term, many of us on our last legs after May Week, to finish the year with a win. I can't believe that I am entering final year but cannot wait to see what the team will achieve, and I will cherish every opportunity I get to play alongside the fantastic women who make up THWFC.

Women's Netball

Olivia Dodd (2017)

The Trinity Hall Women's Netball Team has had a solid and enjoyable season, with a strong team bolstered by incoming freshers, as well as retaining the majority of our team from last season. Unfortunately, despite a good run of victories and draws, tight competition in Division 2 resulted in relegation after Michaelmas to Division 3. Back in Division 3 in Lent, we narrowly missed promotion on goal difference after some very strong victories. The season ended with a rather windy and cold Cuppers tournament. We did not progress as far as we had hoped but we look forward to a good season next year under the new captains, Kate Towsey (2017) and Valentine Kim (2017).

Professor John Clarkson

From Firefighting to a Systems Approach for Health and Care Improvement

John Clarkson is Staff Fellow in Engineering and Professor of Engineering Design. His research interests are in the general area of engineering design, particularly the development of design methodologies to address specific design issues, for example, process management, change management, healthcare design and inclusive design.

From firefighting to a systems approach for health and care improvement. To traverse that journey, what I thought I'd do is to go through what I've been doing in my career. And it only makes sense to me now because I've looked at it from the other end looking back. So I thought I'd talk about stepping motors, that's exciting, technology consulting, engineering design, a systems approach and then health and care improvement. So starting out with stepping motors in Trinity Hall. The stepping motor. It's a wonderful piece, it's a digital motor. When you ask it to move it moves at a certain angle, when you ask it to move again it moves a bit more. If you keep asking it to move it rotates. It has a torque speed curve. It has high torque at low speed, typical of many motors. It's well known that it has resonance problems at low speed. What was less well known was that it had high speed resonances and no one really understood why that was happening but it really compromised the use of those motors in practice. So that's the torque for a stepping motor. That's the quote for the physical system for a stepping motor. It's interesting because it has mechanical terms and it has electrical terms. And if it is to be stable, that particular term in the middle has to be greater than zero. But what's interesting is that one of those terms is mechanical and one is electrical. So I spent 18 months deriving that equation. That was pretty much my PhD. And it comes from this part here. So then I plotted those two equations. And if you overlay on that where the motor is allowed to operate.

And then so what if on this one here, the number goes to a certain negative value? Suddenly you can explain the instability. It's strange, I knew what I was looking for but it took 18 months to come up with that equation, with this graph and that intersection to explain why the motors become unstable. And then I added some software to it where I could control the instability. So, of course, completely unintelligible. I could not do one of those equations now, but looking back it was the beginning of me becoming excited by the interplay between things mechanical, electrical and then software.

Eden Oration

30 November 2018

Professor Ian Wilkinson

Ian Wilkinson is Staff Fellow in Clinical Medicine, Professor of Therapeutics, Director of Cambridge Clinical Trials Unit and Honorary Consultant Physician at Addenbrookes.

His research focuses on understanding the biological pathways underlying systemic hypertension and arteriosclerosis, with a strong emphasis on basic physiology, experimental/translational medicine and early phase interventional clinical trials.

Traditionally the Eden Orator talks about what they do. However, I thought a talk about shuffling paper across my desk would be rather boring, so let's talk about drugs.

As Paracelsus said, 'All things are poison, and nothing is without poison, the dosage alone makes it so a thing is not a poison'. That is still true today.

Warfarin will be known to many of you as rat poison, and it's still commonly used as an anticoagulant, but get the dose wrong and you can get life-threatening haemorrhage. One in 25 people given Warfarin will bleed, and 1 in 400 will have a life-threatening bleed.

Botulinium toxin – death from paralysis if you eat John West salmon in a tin that's not been properly prepared, but small doses are used for face-lifts or indeed actual medical problems like bladder instability or excess sweating.

Curare, an extract from the Chondrodendron plant, which will be more familiar to you as the poison arrows of South Americans Indians used to kill prey and each other, but it is also used as a muscle relaxant in surgery. It's also available from homeopathy stores on the web if you would like to purchase some.

However, some drugs we give with the best intent are simply poisons. Mercury baths for syphilis prevalent at the time of Shakespeare or tobacco encouraged by GPs to help expectoration (coughing up phlegm) in the 1920s and 30s we now know is just a good way of killing you.

Commemoration of Benefactors

Sunday 4 February 2018

The Revd Canon Dr Anthony Phillips (Fellow 1969-74)

Anthony Phillips read theology at King's College, London and then undertook a PhD studying the Ten Commandments at Gonville and Caius College. In 1966 he was ordained to a curacy in Cambridge and three years later, he was appointed Dean and Chaplain of Trinity Hall.

It is appropriate that once a year we should stop and give thanks for our benefactors who have enhanced, indeed made possible, the work of this College through the centuries since our foundation by Bishop Bateman. As a result men and latterly women have been so educated as to enrich the life of this nation in church and state, law and medicine, arts and sciences, as they continue to do.

Whereas until recently benefactions were 'almost a matter of chance', as a particular alumni remembered with affection this Hidden Hall, today fundraising has become a significant arm of College administration and benefactors are encouraged to become members of particular associations, the Bateman Benefactors, the Master's Circle and the Nathaniel Lloyd Society. Tonight we especially salute you who by virtue of your generosity have been invited to our Commemoration of Benefactors Dinner.

And remembering our second lesson we must not forget the vast number of individual donors who through their smaller contributions have shown their love for their College and their belief in its future. They too have a worthy place in our gratitude, for the College depends far more than it ever did on the devotion and loyalty of former members.

Dear

Fundraising

Supporting students across collegiate

Thanks to the generosity of alumni and friends across collegiate Cambridge, the Campaign for the University and Colleges of Cambridge is supporting more exceptional students than ever before.

In October 2018, Vice-Chancellor Professor Stephen Toope announced a £500m fundraising drive specifically for student support – the Student Support Initiative (SSI). The SSI focuses on three key areas:

- (i) postgraduate studentships to ensure quality and diversity of postgraduates;
- (ii) undergraduate financial support and widening participation programmes; and
- (iii) student wellbeing, sport and cultural activities, to ensure students thrive and have the best possible experience at Cambridge.

To ensure that all students with the potential to excel have a chance to study at Cambridge, we must work towards removing the barriers that stand in their way. Trinity Hall shares this commitment to current and future generations of students, and we are excited to share our plans with you next year.

The Harding Challenge

The Harding Challenge is made possible by the £100m gift to Cambridge from the David and Claudia Harding Foundation in February 2019. This is an opportunity to enhance the impact of your generosity and multiply the power of your donation, supporting students across collegiate Cambridge. For the first year (1 August 2019 – 31 July 2020), if you are a new donor and give to any aspect of the SSI, your gift will unlock, pound for pound, a contribution to a special intercollegiate fund for undergraduate financial support. Your donation to College student support will benefit not only students at Trinity Hall but also undergraduates in greatest need across Cambridge. Gifts of any size up to £100,000 qualify and every pound makes a difference.

Any donation to Trinity Hall stays in Trinity Hall and counts towards the total funds raised for the Campaign for the University and Colleges of Cambridge, standing at £1.59b as of 30 September 2019. Find out more about the campaign:

Bishop's Palace at Wells

The Trinity Hall Association Secretary's Report

Dr Chris Angus (1967)
Secretary, Trinity Hall Association

The 2018 autumn event on Saturday 17 November took us on a return trip to Yorkshire, this time to the award-winning Hepworth Wakefield gallery, where we gathered for drinks, a tour of the galleries and dinner. It proved to be a stunning venue with a wonderful collection to view and a superb dinner.

On Saturday 9 May, we headed to the West Country to the splendid surroundings of the Bishop's Palace at Wells. The evening got underway with drinks in the undercroft when we were unexpectedly joined by the Rt Revd Peter Hancock, the Bishop of Bath and Wells (for whom the Palace is home), who opened up the wonderful Bishop's Chapel and the Long Gallery for us to visit. The appearance of the Bishop might be explained by the presence of Revd Prebendary Stephen Lynas (1977), who had previously been the Bishop's Chaplain. Immediately prior to dinner, Stephen hugely entertained us with tales from the history of the Palace. We were pleased to welcome the Vice-Master to the dinner.

The Hepworth Family Gift Gallery

The 2019 Annual General Meeting (AGM) was held in College on Saturday 28 September. At the AGM Dr David Billett (1968) took over from myself as Secretary; Dr Emily Floeck (2007) and Dr Andrew Lennon (1998) retired from the Committee; Ms Lizzie Iron (1977) was elected to it. The AGM was preceded by a fascinating talk by Sir Peter Knight, physicist and professor of quantum optics. The AGM was followed by another truly superb dinner – wonderful food accompanied by some terrific wines, great service and excellent company.

Looking forward, the THA will be at the Merseyside Maritime Museum in Liverpool for dinner in November, and Spring 2020 will see us at the Titanic, Belfast.

As always, we are deeply indebted to the support that we receive from the staff of the Alumni and Development Office throughout the year; without them we would find it very difficult to function. It has also been a great delight to welcome the Master, Vice-Master and other Fellows to our events during the year as part of that enduring link between all of us and the Hall.

I shall be retiring as Secretary at this AGM after eight years in the post and eleven years on the Committee. Looking back over that time, it has been a great privilege to serve the Association and it has been a hugely enjoyable experience. I have served under four Presidents, all with very distinctive styles, and it has been a pleasure working closely with all of them, just as it has been a great pleasure working with the staff of the Alumni and Development Office. Email has proved a boon – over eight thousand emails sent and received, saving reams and reams of paper. Thirty-seven meetings prepared for, minutes taken and written up. One of the best bits has been attending 33 events during that time and meeting so many Trinity Hall members and their partners from across the generations. There is always a great buzz about THA events, meeting old friends and making new friends. But the other very real pleasure has been the ongoing links with College, with the Masters, Fellows, students and staff, and to see the College flourishing in so many ways.

“From the bottom of my heart, I would like to extend my thanks to you. A year ago, I was begrudgingly following the academic career path laid out before me. With your help, I was able to break out of that to realise my dreams of entrepreneurship within biotechnology and healthcare.

“Following your example, I will endeavour to pay this forward to the next generation. Thank for you helping make Cambridge what it is.”

Jake, MPhil in Bioscience Enterprise
